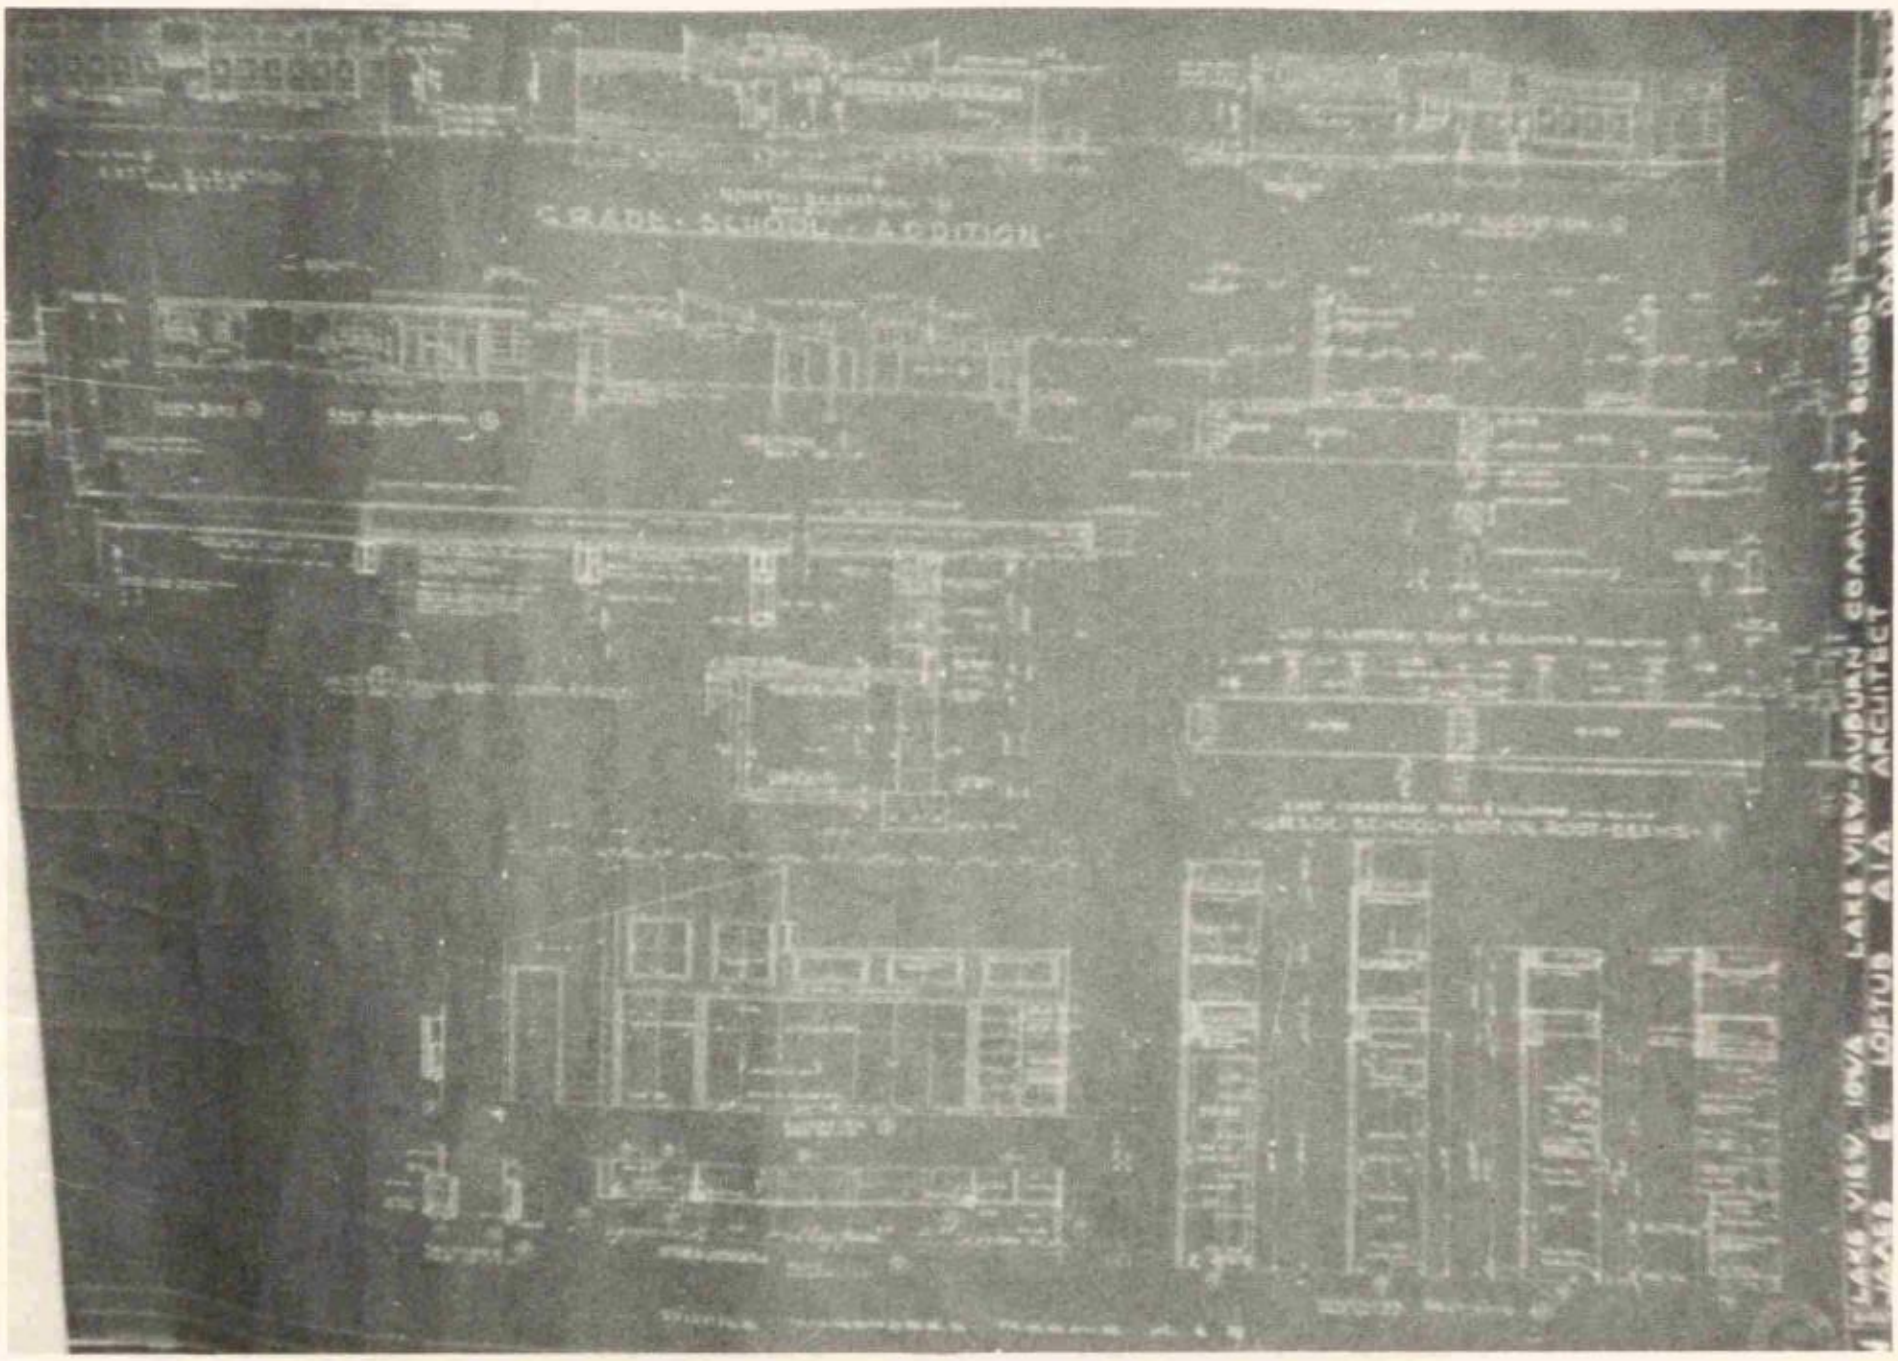
"BUILDING A BETTER TOMORROW"



The 1969-70 school year at Lake View-Auburn was a special "building year." Not only did the students advance in knowledge, but the new additions to the school were also built. As the school was constructed according to the blueprints, the student body established their learning in proportion with the school. This yearbook will show the comparison between the progress of learning and building for the future, at Lake View-Auburn.

"THE BUILDING BLOCKS" ELEMENTARY

One the basic steps in building our future is through education. Our education begins in the elementary grades, and thus they are called the "Building blocks of learning."

The primary materials used in the construction of our school were also blocks. Similarly, these cement blocks, near the new elementary addition, correspond with the importance of the new rooms.

"A GOOD START" SENIORS

This picture represents a "good start" of Senior lives. The gym is partially completed as is their education, for education is a continuing thing and isn't determined at this point. Their lives are beginning again as is the history of the gym. Their futures lie unknown in the shadows of times to come.

"COMPLETING THE STRUCTURE" ACTIVITIES

Although the basic structure of the gym is shown above, it needs such things as a wood floor and bleachers to make it complete. School life is much the same. The basic education is provided by classroom activities, but many essential characteristics are formed and strengthened by extracurricular activities. They form such characteristics as cooperation with different types of people, teamwork, sportsmanship, and a respect for fellow man.

The All Staters, a select group of singers, were presented on the Fort Dodge television station during one of a series of high school vocal Christmas programs. Selections from the high school Christmas concert were featured. Bill Bruns narrated as a story was told in song.

A choral medieval tree trimming was enjoyed by the public during the Christmas season. The chorus was attired in formal dress. Choral members were seated around decorated tables on the gymnasium floor while the audience sat on the bleacher and stage areas. The concert included selections of traditional, as well as modern music.

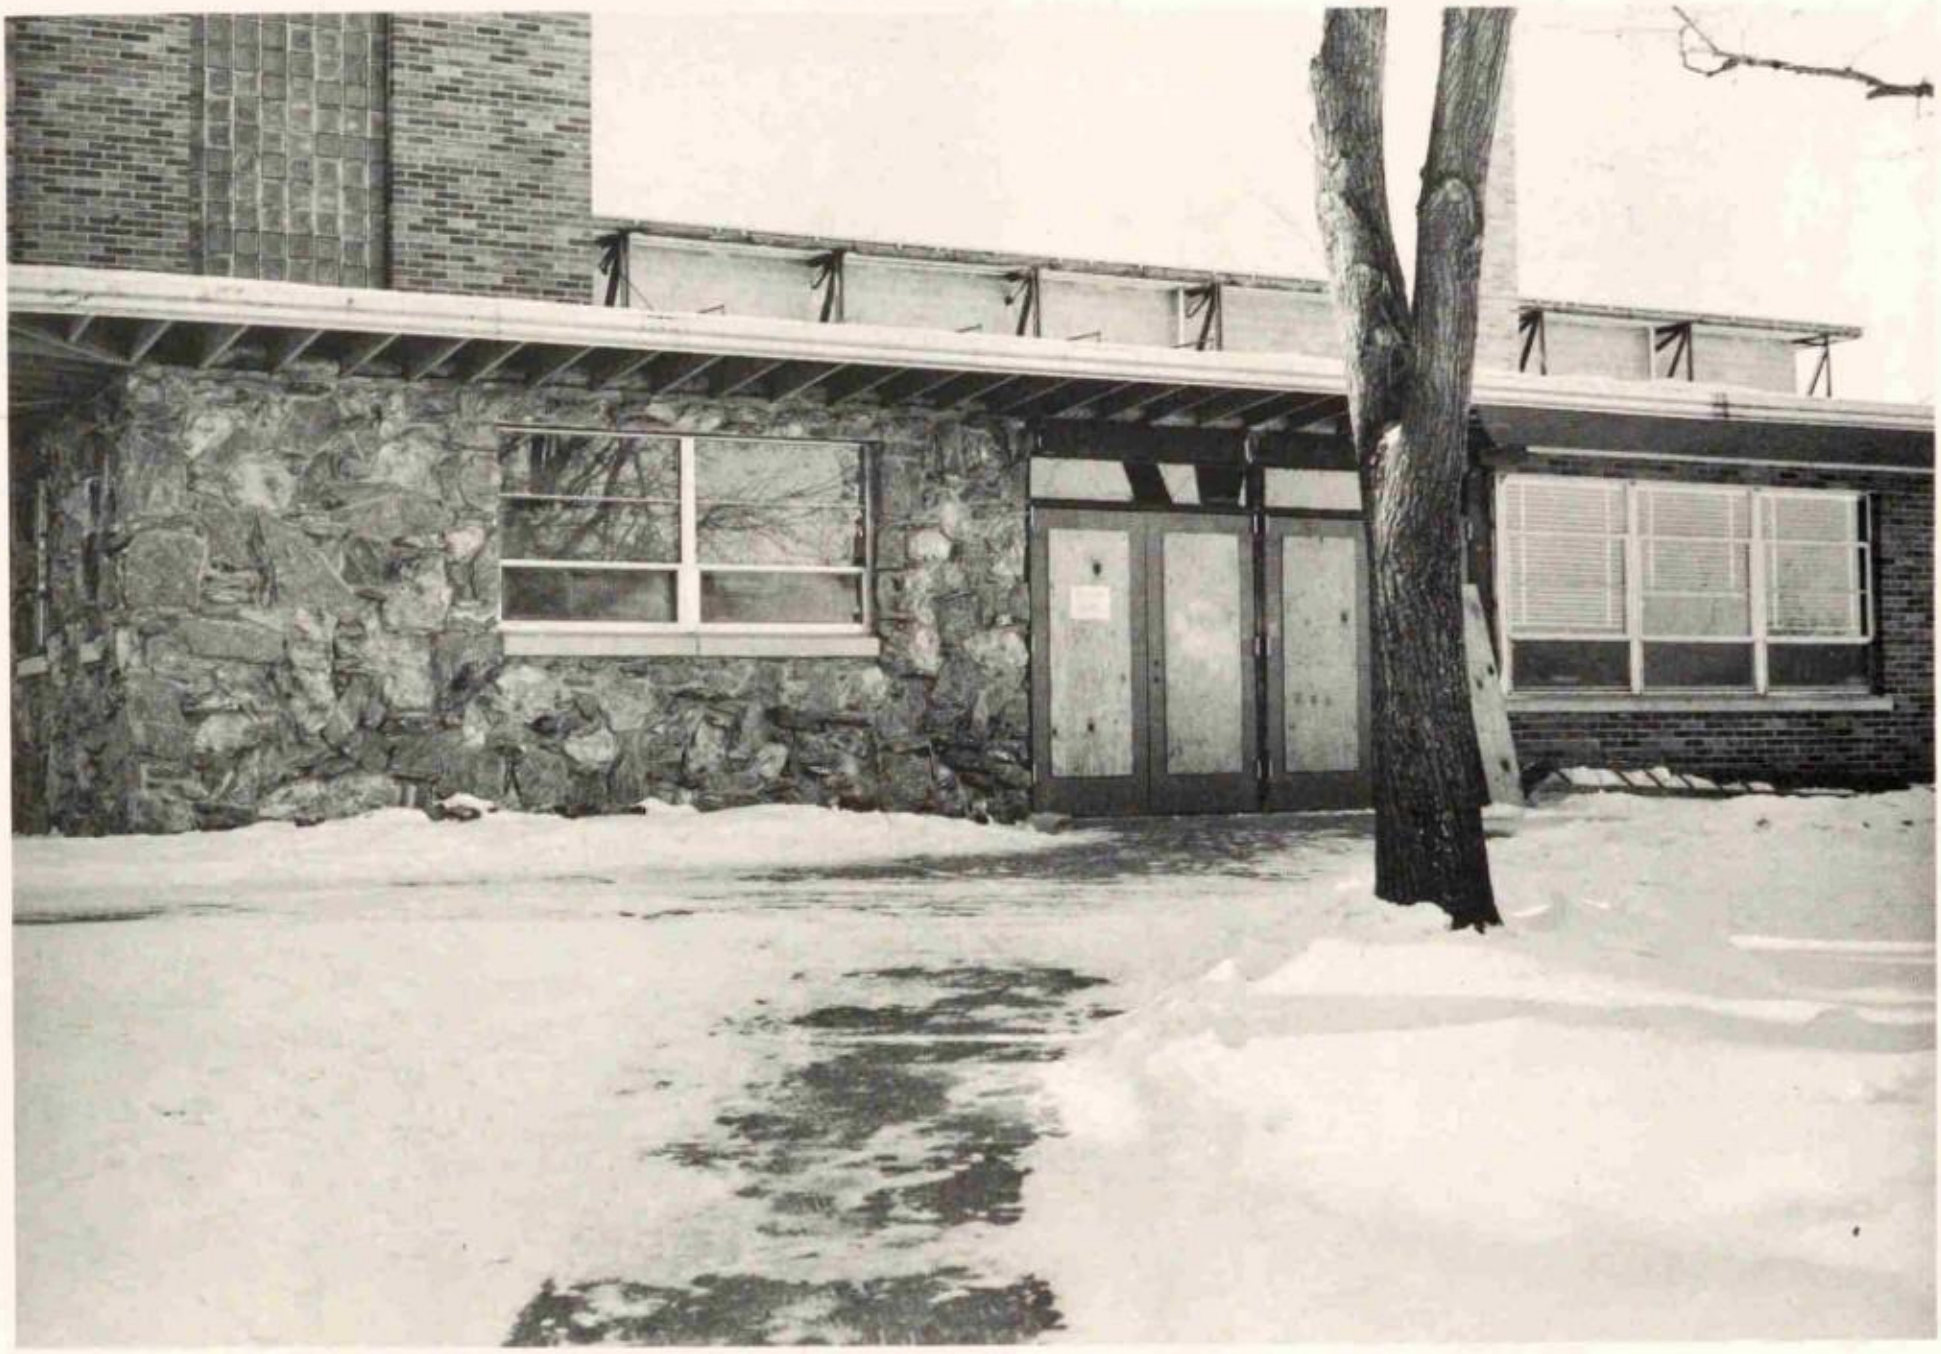
FAMILIAR SIGHTS
FACULTY AND ADMINISTRATION



During the Progressions of construction, of the more familiar sights around school was the new entrance and First-Aid station. Because it was one of the first new structures, it was soon put to much use. The administration and faculty also are some of the familiar people at school. Their guidance and help is invaluable to us in our different levels of education.
